

“Treat the whole patient and not the hole in the patient”

A practical tool for the treatment of a patient with a complexe wound.
H.Post MAANP 2007. Zaandam, The Netherlands

Treatment of a patient with a complexe wound is a continuous process. All steps should be followed at start and evaluation (once every two weeks) of the wound care. The products listed here do not heal the wound. They counteract the detrimental factors to produce an optimal environment in which the body can heal the wound itself (autolysis). All detrimental factors should be treated, concurrently if necessary, by using a combination of different products or combined products.
